Johnson County--A county in the west central part of the State. It is bounded on the north by Lafayette County, on the east by Pettis County, on the south by Henry and Cass Counties and on the west by Jackson and Cass Counties.

The county was named in honor of Richard Mentor Johnson, a distinguished soldier in the Indian Wars, a United States Senator and later Vice President of the United States. It was laid off from a part of the territory then embraced by Lafayette County.

Columbus is the oldest settlement. In 1827 Pleasant Rice located there and raised the first crop of corn marketed in the county. He was followed in the fall of the same year by Nicholas Houx. In a few years Dr. Robert Rankin, Rev. Robert King, John Whitsitt, Robert Craig, Uriel Murray, Morgan Cockrell, Noland Brewer and others had settled in the same vicinity. Before 1840 Harvey Harrison, an early member of the county court, settled near Hazel Hill. John L. Trapp, for many years the presiding judge of the county court, was an early settler.

In 1833 Richard Huntsman settled near Fayetteville and set out the first orchard in the county, the tree cuttings having been brought from Tennessee. The same year Christopher and James Mulkey, Jacob Pearman, Edward Corder and William Frapp settled in the county.

These were followed by Gideon Harrison, John Evans, Thomas Evans, William Hooten, Joseph Hobson, Samuel Evans, William Bigham, Robert Graham, James Cockrell and John, William Daniel and David Marr. Among the early settlers in the southeastern part of the county were James Patrick, J. N. Ousley, Nathan Janes and James Marshall.

Dr. J. M. Fulkerson was among the early settlers at Columbus, and he married the daughter of Phillip Houx, one of the first sheriffs of Johnson County. Immediately after the organization of the county Amos Horn, Robert Rankin and Uriel Muarry were appointed justices of the first county court. The inaugural session of the body was held at the residence of Mrs. Rachel Houx, the widow of an early settler heretofore mentioned, near the present site of Columbus, August 6, 1835, with Honorable John F. Ryland as judge, Joseph Cockrell as sheriff and J. H. Townsend as clerk.

The first site of the county seat was about three miles east of the ground now occupied by Columbus, but as much opposition was raised to this selection by residents of other portions of the county a change was made and in 1836 the county seat was moved to its present location, the place being named Warrensburg in honor of Martin Warren.
